PREFACE.

THERE is perhaps no class of record to be named which can be regarded as of greater value to the genealogist than are wills. These documents usually give information respecting the testator's own family and his kindred, which seldom can be elsewhere obtained, and in any case indeed it may be said that rarely can any pedigree of more than two or three generations be compiled without reference to them. But it is only within the last thirty years that any organised steps have been taken to render these invaluable records generally accessible to the public. Until then reference to them was singularly difficult, for not only were the records themselves scattered in various repositories, but the indexes thereto were often very inadequate, and indeed not seldom inaccurate and untrustworthy. Moreover, access to them was fenced off by fees, which had to be paid before they could be consulted. The institution of a literary department in the Principal Probate Registry in London, at first limited in date to 1700, and now available for all wills older than one hundred years from the current date, was a boon greatly appreciated by genealogists. The necessity of printed indexes was soon apparent, but it was not till about 1881 that much in that direction was done. At that date appeared an index of early Cheshire wills, since followed by others of that district, which was issued by the Record Society of Lancashire and Cheshire. In 1888 was started the Index Library, for the purpose of systematically printing indexes and calendars to Wills in the numerous English Probate Registries, and this work has ever since been steadily continued under the auspices of the British Record Society. It is now but a question of a few years before there will be a complete series of printed calendars of English wills available for the student's use.

A Scottish Record Series, which was an offshoot of the British Record Society, and indeed at first issued by that Society, was started in 1897, the first volume to be published being the Testaments for the Commissariot of Edinburgh, and now Scottish genealogists have the advantage of a complete series of indexes for the Testaments of all the Commissariots down to the year 1800.

In Ireland a commencement in the same direction was made by the late Deputy Keeper of the Records, Dr. J. J. Digges La Touche, who, in 1895, issued as an Appendix to the Deputy Keeper's Twenty-sixth Annual Report an "Index to the Act or Grant Books and to the Original Wills of the Diocese of Dublin to the year 1800". This work, which contained 1089 + viii pages, included more than Testamentary records, reference also being given to Marriage Licences, Commissions, Decrees, Dispensations, Divorces, Excommunications, Letters of Tutelage, Sequestrations, Surgeons' Licences, and much other business, secular and ecclesiastical, which was transacted in the Consistorial Court of the Archbishop of Dublin. It is a reference book of great value, which no student of Irish genealogy can dispense with. It may be noted that the earliest testamentary records commence in 1638, though, unfortunately, there is a hiatus in the grants of Administrations during the years 1657-1661, and in the grants of Probate in 1648-1652, in 1654-1661, in 1708-1712, in 1721-1727, and again in 1730-1746.

Two years after the publication of Dr. La Touche's index, viz., in 1897, Sir Arthur Vicars, the Ulster King of Arms, issued a volume of 512 + xii pages, entitled "Index to the Prerogative Wills of Ireland, 1536-1810". These wills were similar in character to the Prerogative Wills in England, both in the province of Canterbury and the province of York; that is, the will of any testator who was possessed of bona notabilia, i.e., effects worth more than £5, in more than one diocese, had to be proved in the Prerogative Court, which in Ireland was the Prerogative Court of the Archbishop of Armagh, Primate of Ireland, the supreme court in all matters concerning which the ecclesiastical authorities had cognisance.

In 1905 an index to the Wills in Kildare Diocese, which commence in 1661, was printed by Mr. Sydney Cary.

As this is a very small index, for the Bishop of Kildare had jurisdiction over but a portion of the county of that name, and the neighbouring parts of King's and Queen's Counties, it has seemed advisable to include them in this volume. The ancient ecclesiastical province of Dublin included not only the Diocese of Dublin but also the Sees of Ossory, Ferns, Leighlin, and Kildare, and it will be seen, therefore, that the printed indexes to the Testamentary records of the five dioceses are included in two volumes. It is estimated that the present volume contains references to about five thousand six hundred wills.

The jurisdiction of the sees extended over the various counties as shown below :—

Ossory.—Part of Kilkenny, part of Queen's County.

Leighlin.—Carlow, part of Kilkenny, part of Queen's County, part of Wicklow.

Ferns.—Wexford, part of Wicklow.

Kildare.—Part of Kildare, parts of King's and Queen's Counties.

The boundaries of the five sees are indicated in the map of the Province of Dublin which faces the title page.

In 1857 the Ecclesiastical jurisdiction over testamentary matters was abolished, and a Court of Probate established, and it is only needful to add that Wills and Administrations and other testamentary records are now deposited in the care of the Master of the Rolls in his Record Office at the Four Courts in Dublin, where they can be easily consulted.

The thanks of the reader are due to the Master of the Rolls, who has permitted the publication of these indexes, and to Mr. James Mills, the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. I am also much indebted to him for his advice in projecting this series of Irish Probate indexes. These indexes have been transcribed by Miss Gertrude Thrift, of Dublin, who has further perused the proofs as they passed through the press, and the thanks both of Editor and reader are due to her for the care she has bestowed upon the work.

Testamentary records more than 100 years old are now available for consultation by Literary Readers without payment of fees. It has been decided to limit all the volumes included in this series to wills recorded before the year 1800.

PREFACE

THE Preface to the first Volume of this Series contained particulars respecting the Testamentary Records of Ireland, and to it the reader is referred.

It is requisite only to observe that the present volume is one of special importance, for not only does it include the testamentary records of the City of Cork, but these records commence at the early date of 1548. Only three others, Dublin, Meath, and Ossory have Calendars beginning in the sixteenth century. No other Diocese appears to have testamentary records of an earlier date than the year 1615.

It is estimated that the present volume contains references to about six thousand four hundred wills.

The jurisdiction of the sees comprised in the present volume extended over the whole of the County of Cork.

The boundaries of the sees are indicated in the map facing the Title page.

In 1857 the Ecclesiastical jurisdiction over testamentary matters was abolished, and a Court of Probate established, and it is only needful to add that Wills and Administrations and other testamentary records are now deposited in the care of the Master of the Rolls in his Record Office at the Four Courts in Dublin, where they can be easily consulted.

The thanks of the reader are due to the Master of the Rolls, who has permitted the publication of these indexes, and to Mr. James Mills, the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. The indexes now printed were transcribed by Miss Gertrude Thrift, of Dublin, who also perused the proofs as they passed through the press, and the thanks both of Editor and reader are due to her for the care she has bestowed upon the work.

Testamentary records more than 100 years old are now available for consultation by Literary Readers in the Public Record Office at Dublin without payment of fees. The volumes included in this series are limited to wills and administrations before the year 1801.

It may be noted here for the reader's information that the Calendars of Administrations for the dioceses included in this volume and others will be issued separately.

PHILLIMORE AND CO., LTD., 124, CHANCERY LANE,

PREFACE.

THE last volume of this Series contained the Indexes of Cork and Ross and Cloyne, the Sees comprised in the County of Cork; the present volume contains the remainder of the Dioceses in the old Archiepiscopal Province of Cashel. Their position and extent will be better understood from the sketch-map facing the title-page.

Mr. Phillimore, to whose initiative this Series owes its origin, and by whom the first two volumes were seen through the press, died on the 9th of April of the current year, just after this volume had been placed in the printer's hands. In consequence of this loss, the present volume has been entirely edited by Miss Gertrude Thrift, who, as before, had undertaken the labour of transcribing the Calendars and correcting the proofs.

The thanks of the subscribers are again due to the Master of the Rolls in Ireland for permission to print these indexes, and to Mr. James Mills, the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records, for giving facilities for the work, and for much helpful advice.

PREFACE.

THE previous volumes of this Series have dealt with Dioceses in the South of Ireland. We now print an Index for an Ulster Diocese—that of Dromore, which comprises parts of the counties of Down and Armagh, and the parish of Aghalee in Antrim. The Diocese of Dromore was united to the Dioceses of Down and Connor in 1842. Among the records of the Diocese of most use to genealogists it will be useful to note that there are extant Administration Bonds from 1742 to 1858, Marriage Licence Bonds from 1721 to 1845, Inventories 1733 to 1858, and Court Books 1714-1865, the earlier volumes of which also contain testamentary entries.

The exempt, or peculiar, jurisdiction of Newry and Mourne comprises the parishes of Newry, Kilcoo, Kilmegan, Kilkeel (Mourne), and chapelry of Tamlaght, and was a survival of the jurisdiction of the Cistercian Abbey of the B.V.M. and St. Patrick of Newry founded in 1157 by Maurice MacLoughlin, King of Ireland. In 1237, Hugh de Lacy, Earl of Ulster, created the head of the house a mitred abbot, with episcopal jurisdiction within his lordship. In 1543, Henry VIII. incorporated the Abbey as a secular college, John Provote, abbot, to be first warden (see Fiants, Appendix to 7th Report of Deputy Keeper), but this soon decayed, and in 1552 the Abbey and all its possessions was granted by Edward VI. to Sir Nicholas Bagnal "in as full and ample a manner as it had been enjoyed by the abbot." Hence the episcopal jurisdiction devolved upon the lay proprietor and his descendants, the Earls of Kilmorey, who appointed a Vicar General who granted marriage licences, probates of wills, etc. under the ancient monastic seal, holding courts and "performing every other episcopal act with as plenary authority as any bishop, being subject only to the Lord Primate as Metropolitan" (Lewis). At Kilkeel, a post town in the Barony of Mourne, 15 miles S.E. from Newry, a manorial court was held in the sessions house once in three weeks for the manor of Greencastle and Mourne by the Earl's seneschal, the jurisdiction extending over the whole Barony of Mourne. For some time it would seem that two Vicars General were appointed—one for Newry, and one for Mourne at Kilkeel. The wills proved by the latter were deposited with the Vicar General at Newry, either on probate being taken out or on the death of the Rev. L. Waring, Vicar General at Kilkeel, about 1823, after which time there does not appear to have been a separate Vicar General for Mourne. The Mourne Wills lodged with the Vicar General at Newry were kept distinct from those of Newry, and were so when transferred to the Public Record Office.

The seal of the Court had for device a mitred abbot in his alb, sitting on a throne, supported by two yew trees, with this inscription: "Sigillum exemptæ jurisdictionis de viridi ligno alias Newry et Mourne"—the yew trees being in allusion to the tree planted by St. Patrick at the head of the strand, from which the name Newry is derived, "Iubhar ceann tragha" (pron. "Yure kintraw")—the yew tree at the strand-head—being shortened to Yure, which, by prefixing the definite article "an," became Newry. "A.D. 1162. The monastery of the monks of Iubhar cinn-tragha was burned with all its furniture and books and also the yew which St. Patrick himself had planted" ("Annals of the Four Masters").

Much modern genealogical work deals with the histories of comparatively obscure families, and with the passing of each decade the data of the first half of the 19th century becomes increasingly important to the searcher. We have therefore continued the Indexes in the present volume to the extinction of the jurisdictions in 1858, instead of stopping, as in our previous volumes, at the end of the 18th century; and we hope the support the work will receive will justify all our future Indexes being brought to a similar completeness.

Miss Gertrude Thrift is again responsible for compiling the Indexes and correcting the proofs, and the thanks of the subscribers are again due to the Master of the Rolls in Ireland for permission to print; to Mr. M. J. McEnery, the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records, for giving facilities for the work; and to Mr. H. Wood, Assistant Deputy Keeper, for much helpful advice.

The accompanying map shews the area of the Diocese of Dromore and its geographical position relative to the adjacent jurisdictions of N.E. Ireland. The thick lines indicate the boundaries of the Dioceses, the broken lines those of the counties. It will be noticed that the two by no means coincide, but that they cut and cross each other apparently in very arbitrary ways, so that from a small scale map it is not easy to decide with certainty in which Diocese the wills of many districts are to be sought.

PREFACE.

THIS, the second volume of the Series to deal with the North of Ireland, comprises the Wills for the Dioceses of Derry and Raphoe prior to 1858.

The Bishoprics of Derry and Raphoe were united in 1834, but the Courts and Registries were not united till after the Act of 27 and 28 Vict., c. 54.

Geographically, the jurisdiction of Derry covered nearly the entire county of that name, the western half of co. Tyrone, that bit of co. Antrim which is comprised in the parish of Ballyscullion, some bordering parishes of Donegal, and the peninsula between Loughs Foyle and Swilly. The jurisdiction of Raphoe comprised the remainder of co. Donegal.

It will be useful for the student to know what other records are now extant in these Courts, and the following list is accordingly appended, taken from the excellent "Guide to Records deposited in the Public Record Office of Ireland," by Mr. Herbert Wood, issued last year:—

Diocesan Registry Books, 1677-1870.
Visitation Books, 1622, 1634, 1691-1868.
Administration Bonds, 1698-1857.
Court Books, 1771-1866.
Inventories, 1708-1857.
Marriage Licence Bonds, 1702-1722 (only 5 Bonds).
